A first impression

A charming end-terrace house from 1956 is for sale, which offers a variety of uses with a living space of approx. 123 m<sup>2</sup> and a plot of around 239 m<sup>2</sup>. The house extends over two floors and has a total of five rooms - including four possible bedrooms and a bathroom. An additional guest WC on the first floor provides additional comfort in everyday life. The heart of the house is the cozy eat-in kitchen, which offers direct access to the garden and terrace. Especially in the warmer months, this area invites you to linger and relax. The classic pitched roof and rendered façade lend the house a timeless charm. The house has a full basement and therefore offers plenty of storage space. The attic can also be used as additional storage space, which further expands the possible uses. A garage right next to the house provides convenient access and makes parking easier. Targeted modernizations were carried out up to 2023: The central heating was renewed and the windows were replaced with double-glazed plastic frame windows back in 1980. Nevertheless, the house is in need of renovation, making it an exciting project for handy buyers who want to unleash the full potential of this property. The house has been rented to friendly, older tenants for over 30 years, who currently pay a net rent of EUR 1,360 per month. This stable rental income initially makes the property particularly interesting for investors. At the same time, the solid basis offers the opportunity to use the house yourself after further modernization or to offer it on the rental market again. The terraced end-terrace house impresses with its quiet, family-friendly location. Thanks to its good connections, it is ideal for commuters or families looking for a harmonious balance between urban life and a relaxed living atmosphere. Overall, this house impresses with its practical room layout, generous amount of space and development potential. For prospective buyers looking for long-term use, this is an opportunity to settle down in a charming residential area or to make an attractive investment.
